Expert Insight

Revving up your Corporate Communications

Effective corporate communications is vital for a business regardless of whether it is used to promote new products or strategies, talk with the press, or communicate with stakeholders and customers. The business that has turned good communication into an art form is Nissan Motor Company Ltd, Japan's second largest and arguably most competitive automobile enterprise. Under the stewardship of CEO Carlos Ghosn, Nissan's phoenix-like rise from the ashes has captured not only hearts and minds, but also hundreds of hours of advertising and media time and thousands of headlines worldwide.

Business reporter Jonathan Walsh spoke with Simon Sparrow, Vice President of Global Communications at Nissan, to discover some of the company's corporate communication secrets that, with a touch of creativity, can empower entrepreneurs to more effectively promote their business and communicate with customers and thousands of stakeholders with timely information.

Nissan needs little introduction. The automaker's stunning turnaround from one of a spiraling black hole of debt, poor employee morale and plummeting global market share into a high-growth, highly profitable efficient cost-making machine has captured headlines the world over.

Nissan's Fueling 2 motorized two-seater convertible with power-operated soft top.

The mission of Sparrow's department is global communications, sustainability and investor relations. "Our goal is to provide key stakeholders with timely information about Nissan and its brands that allow them to make informed decisions concerning our company and its products. Speed, relevance and trust are the core of all communications at Nissan."

Key departmental responsibilities include media and shareholder relations, crisis and employee communication, corporate citizenship, media activities, motor shows, product launches, publications, websites, broadcast media services and event management.

"On the global communications side, our principle work are the website, press releases, media presentations, media, analyst & shareholder events, speeches, conference presentations, and other activities." PTO...

FEBRUARY 2006

How did a small Tokyo-based project management company reach the stage where they now enjoy 80% repeat business with some of the biggest names in the Japanese business arena?

It was only late in the last decade when many companies in Japan saw little if any need for outsourced project management (PM) services. But that attitude was rocked to the core when Y2K – the so-called "Millennium Bug" – drove thousands of companies the other way to purchase outsourced PM services to guarantee their Y2K projects were seen up right before midnight 2000.

Then, only two short years later, services business reporter Jonathan Walsh in this report about a growing Tokyo-based project management company, the successful PM Global, laid it all out in the consciousness of the business community again.

As it fits, the issue that surfaced in early 2002 resulting from the merging of three Japanese banks into "Mitsui Holdings" underlined the critical importance of PM. The prime cause of the glitches that plagued the banks of Mitsui was inadequate project management, says Ann O'Connell Hunter, Senior

Enabling companies to experience project success

"There was more pushing going on among the three entities than project management. With proper project management using defined, standardized guidelines, those kinds of problems do not occur."

Former of Tokyo-based PM company PM Global: "There was more pushing going on among the three entities than project management. With proper project management using defined, standardized guidelines, those kinds of problems do not occur."

Enabling companies to experience project success

With more than 25 years from the I.T. industry in many countries and a 1-year stint (1997-2000) as Senior Project Manager for an I.T. consulting company in Tokyo, Coach co-founded PM Global with two other partners in June 2001. The company name was changed to PM Global in 2005 to reflect its status as a rapidly growing global PM service provider.

Why are PM Global's services important for businesses? "It's fairly common knowledge in Japan and around the world that people in organizations have trouble effectively and successfully conducting projects of any sort in accordance with requirements, scope, budget, and schedule," Coach says. "So, our service is to provide the opportunity

80% of revenues from repeat business

How was TopTech founded?
The company was originally founded as India in a software house before Biju Paul and his family launched the company in Japan in mid-2003 by marketing it under the brand name "TopTech Informatics". Six months later, TopTech had grown into a team of 15 but the business rapidly expanded as IT divisions of a Japanese company called Global Family Inc. in February 2006. TopTech was off and became a fully independent and legal Japanese entity. By the end of 2006, the company had a team of 20 working hard to provide tailored software solutions to clients, and had achieved year-on-year revenue growth of 50% + between 2004 and 2006.

Where is growth being generated from?
"Approximately 80% of revenues are a result of repeat business while 15% comes from referrals from growing customers," Biju says.
